Inside NOWAVE & How They're Powering NY Cannabis From Chili

Recently the team at Cannabis Corner had the opportunity to step behind the scenes of one of the most important cannabis production facilities in our region — the NOWAVE processing center in Chili, the processor behind brands you know and love like off hours, Luci, Eaton, and more! With dispensaries popping up all across Rochester, seeing a homegrown processor operating at this scale was an impressive reminder that much of NY's cannabis innovation is happening right here in our backyard. During the tour, our staff spent time with NOWAVE's in-house chemist, asking questions about everything from extraction techniques to how products are formulated to create specific, targeted experiences. From energizing daytime edibles to relaxing evening formulas, we learned how precise cannabinoid ratios and terpene profiles are carefully designed to shape how a product feels... continue on reverse

Industry News

Marijuana Rescheduled

Marijuana has been rescheduled from a Schedule I to a Schedule III substance, marking the first major federal shift in decades. This change acknowledges that cannabis has recongized medical use and a lower potential for abuse than previously classified. While it doesn't make cannabis fully legal at the federal level, the rescheduling opens the door for expanded research, banking access, and regulatory opportunities for the industry.

"... a cultural turning point, acknowledging what millions of Americans already know: cannabis is medicine"

We also got a firsthand look at their live resin process, where fresh-frozen cannabis preserves the plant's natural terpene profile, capturing aroma, flavor and character that make these products so popular with enthusiasts. Walking through the production floor, surrounded by stainless steel equipment and precision machinery, it became clear just how much craftsmanship and technology go into every batch.

Beyond the lab, the space itself was striking, a modern, collaborative environment where product development marketing, and design work side by side. Seeing that creative energy in action made it easy to understand why NOWAVE's branding and packaging consistently stand out across NY dispensary shelves, and made apparent that they care about making NOWAVE a cool place to work.

For our team, the visit was more than just a tour; we deepened our knowledge of the products we carry, our connection to the plants harvested in our State and with the people who create amazing products and jobs, leading the way in NY right from our backyard.
